

Senior Command

The Senior Command currently consists of a (5) member team in charge of running the United States Armed Forces.

President of the United States: This rank holds the highest power within the United States Armed Forces. Honorable_Washington oversees and commands all operations of the United States Armed Forces. Additionally, the President of the United States also holds the title of the Commander-in-Chief of the United States Armed Forces.

Vice President of the United States: This rank is second in command of the United States Armed Forces. Additionally, the Vice President of the United States also holds the title of the Vice Commander-in-Chief of the United States Armed Forces.

Secretary of Defense: This ran

Deputy Secretary of Defense: This ran

Branch Secretary: The Branch Secretary is the entry level rank of the Senior Command. Each respective branch of the United States Armed Forces (excluding Military Police and Education) have a secretary that is responsible for the oversight, manpower, updating their respective Joint Chiefs of Staff of command meetings and hosting meeting with their branches. This is essentially an advisory position and they report directly to the Secretary of Defense.

Revision #9

Created 2026-10-10 19:05:05 UTC by Admin

Updated 2026-10-10 19:58:23 UTC by Admin